CANADIAN PLAYERS FIND GOING HARD IN DOMINION MEET

Wally Martin, Toronto, Lone Canuck to Survive Second Day's Play in Championship Tournament at Local Club—Mrs. R. B. Wilson Advances in Singles—Competition Keen

RANKING United States tennis players yesterday stroked their way to victory in sensational fashion at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club courts as play in the Canadian championships reached its second day. Canadian stars, battling in quest of their national titles, found the going hard, more particularly in the men's singles, where Wally Martin, Toronto, and formerly of Regina, is the lone survivor.

Canada's fair sex players fared better than their male colleagues and in this division five Dominion players are still in the running for the championships. Mrs. R. B. Wilson, Victoria's only remaining player, is included in this list, and has reached the quarter-finals. Other Canadian stars to stroke their way to victory include Miss Jean Milne and Miss Sue Milne, Vancouver; Mrs. Gilbert Nunn, Toronto, and Mrs. Ewen Cameron, Brandon.

LONE CANADIAN TEAM
 Only one team, A. C. Brand, Victoria, and Ed McKush, Winnipeg, remains to carry Canada's colors into further battles in the men's doubles. In the doubles, the fair sex players again outshone the men, and here three teams remain in the running. They include Mrs. R. B. Wilson and Jean Campbell, two-time women's doubles champions of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club; and Mrs. Ewen Cameron, Brandon, Misses J. and S. Milne, Vancouver, and Mrs. Gilbert Nunn, Toronto. Play in the women's doubles has already advanced to the quarter-finals, consequently no matches are scheduled today.

Canada's netters have a number of teams still in the running for the mixed doubles crown, with play in this division not advanced quite so far as in the other sections.

MAINLAND BANK ROBBED BY DAY

Vancouver Branch Yields Three Thousand Dollars in Currency to Bandits

VANCOUVER, July 23 (AP).—Three thousand dollars in cash was obtained by bank bandits shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon in an armed raid on a branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada, it was revealed tonight by bank employees after a check had been made.

First reports estimated the loss at $1,100, but investigation showed that the bag grabbed from the teller's cage by one of the bandits contained at least $3,000.

The two bandits, both masked with handkerchiefs, and one armed with a blue steel revolver, entered the Robson and Hornby Streets branch of the Dominion Bank at 1:30 p.m.

TWO GUNS ALONE

John Simpson, teller, and John Campbell, clerk, were alone. They were ordered by the armed gunman to lie on the floor, while his companion entered the teller's cage and grabbed a large money sack. A .38 calibre revolver lying in the teller's cage was also taken.

The two left the bank by the front door and are believed by police to have escaped in an automobile which they had waiting in the lane.

The money is all in Canadian currency of different banks and in denominations up to $20.

FIRE IS BLAMED ON BROKEN JOIST

One Man Still Missing at Hiram Walker Distillery—Only Four Seriously Hurt

PEOBIA, Ill., July 23 (AP).—A broken joist in a crumbling building was blamed today for the $2,700,000 fire which raged a large portion of the Hiram Walker Distillery here and probably took one life.

Six millions gallons of whiskey were destroyed in the blaze last night.

While company officials and fire department officials issued no statement as to the cause, the broken joist theory was advanced by Valerine Jobst, Jr., head of a construction company, who had a crew of men at work in a rackhouse where the fire broke out.

One of the construction crew, John Barden, was still missing tonight and it was believed he was crushed or burned to death. Of twelve others injured, only four were seriously hurt.

SLAYERS IN WILD FLIGHT

Police of Four States Are Searching for Three Men For Murder

BLUE RAPIDS, Kas., July 23 (AP).—Manhunters of four states joined tonight in a search for three alleged slayers—one believed by some pursuers to be Alvin S. Karpis, current Public Enemy No. 1.

The trio fought a gun battle with police at Fairbury, Neb., and later abducted a man, later released unharmed near here, in their wild flight today.

Leaving a trail of stolen motor cars over Kansas and Nebraska, they were believed headed for Kansas City, Mo., or the hills of Oklahoma.

SALESMAN ABDUCTED
 In need of a car after the Fairbury gunfight, the three entered that of W. E. Grogman, Kansas City salesman, at Herkimer, Kas., forcing him to accompany them. They gave him a two-hour ride, then tied him to a chair in a church near here. They left with his automobile and most of his belongings.

All were armed with revolvers and also had at least three machine guns, Grogman said. They boasted of being "tough guys." Grogman said they refrained from calling each other by name.

FIRE ON BY POLICE
 At Fairbury the three were forced to leave their automobile after the engagement with Police Chief Joe Cook and Officer Foster Helvey, who fired when they refused to halt.

The car had been stolen at Hooper, Neb., by three men who abandoned one stolen in Michigan. Officers said the Michigan car was believed taken by slayers of two men near Saginaw on July 6.

STATES MAY USE MIDGET MONEY

Treasury to Seek Approval by Congress of Half Cent and One Mill Pieces

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Midget money may jingle in United States pockets before the Summer is over.

Treasury officials said tonight that if Congress votes approval of the plan for minting half-cent and one mill pieces, the coins could be put into circulation within a month after the law's enactment.

An official said that Secretary Morgenthau's message urging the coinage legislation was virtually completed and would be forwarded to the House coinage committee within a day or two.

Provincial Market Control Authority Is Being Extended

Province Reserves Entire Say on Disposition of Natural Products, by Amended Regulations Under Natural Products Marketing Act

BITISH Columbia's basic food supply passed a little more definitely, under the control of the Government yesterday, as another step in a fast-lengthening chain which has left wide powers in the hands of the Province. Amended regulations under the British Columbia Natural Products Marketing Act gave the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, and the Provincial Markets Board authority to dismiss all market agencies not approved at the end of the year, general supervision over all marketing operations, power to alter or vary any scheme set up, and the casting vote where local boards become deadlocked.

One provision reserved to the Provincial Markets Board was cited in the amended regulations as follows:

SHIP REPORTED SINKING AFTER COLLISION NEAR SAN FRANCISCO

Seamen Calmar and Koryu Maru Crash, With Former Said to Be Foundering and Crew in Lifeboats—Japanese Vessel Not Believed to Be in Any Danger

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23 (AP).—The intercoastal freighter Calmar was seriously damaged in a collision with the Japanese motorship Koryu Maru ten miles south of San Francisco tonight. The Calmar flashed an SOS at 9:02 p.m., saying she was in a "sinking condition" but she was still afloat three hours later with coast guard craft and tugs from San Francisco speeding to her assistance.

The Japanese vessel was silent as to what damage, if any, she suffered. Only a slight wind was blowing and the sea was smooth.

Poor visibility was believed to have been responsible for the collision.

SOME STAY ABOARD
 Twenty minutes after the first call from the Calmar she radioed that her crew of thirty-six—she carried no passengers—was taking to the lifeboats.

Meagre reports said that the Koryu Maru struck the Calmar, slaving in some of her plates and that numbers 2 and 3 holds flooded quickly. The Koryu Maru hove to and stood by lowering

CLEANING UP AFTER STRIKERS EXPENSIVE
 REGINA, July 23 (AP).—The city of Regina has had to pay $1,500 to put the stadium here in shape for normal use after recent occupancy by relief camp strikers. This represents cleaning up and disposing of debris and repairs. The building was fumigated. It cost another $100 to replace electric light bulbs.

CROWD CHEERS
 Between 3,500 and 4,000 persons were either seated in the grandstand or lined along Belleville and Government Streets when the presentation was made. When the Mayor had completed the presentation the band struck up the strain of "She's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the crowd sang the song heartily, after which, at a signal from T. H. Edick, secretary of the Tourist Trade Development Association, they cheered the woman for her bravery.

Present on the platform when the ceremony took place were His Worship and Mrs. Leeming and Mr. Edick. In making the presentation, the Mayor said he took great pride in being able to participate in the ceremony and pay tribute to one who had risked her own life for another might-live.

He then read the citation in which the circumstances and that neither ship was to blame.

As far as the Dominion Government is concerned, there will be formal inquiry into the collision, it was learned last night. Any further move, if any, in connection with the collision or its causes will be at the discretion of one of the other of the owning companies.

BLAMING NONE FOR COLLISION

Informal Inquiry Held by Wreck Commissioner—Neither Ship at Fault

Examining Captain T. V. Hill, of the Canadian-Australian S. S. Niagara, and Captain Paulgrain, of the British freighter King Egbert, which met in collision twenty-three miles west of Race Rocks last Wednesday night and caused each other damage in the neighborhood of $30,000, in a preliminary or informal inquiry in the Marine Building here yesterday, Captain L. H. Lindsay, wreck commissioner, could find no reason for holding a formal inquiry.

The testimony of the ships' captains and other witnesses, it is understood, was to the effect that the collision was unavoidable under the circumstances and that neither ship was to blame.

VOTERS LISTS TO BE READY AUG. 15
 Six Million Canadians Eligible to Vote in Dominion Election—Large Gain in Year

OTTAWA, July 23 (AP).—Voters lists for the federal election will be completed on August 15, it was announced today by Colonel John Thompson, Dominion Franchise Commissioner. Following the recent revision, they are being printed at the Government Bureau at the rate of ten millions daily.

The lists will show 6,000,000 men and women eligible to vote, an increase of 250,000 over the basic lists last year. It will be the first election in Canada where a basic list has been used.

Formerly, a list of voters was prepared for each general election. Under the Dominion Franchise Act passed a year ago, however, a basic list for future elections was prepared, which is revised periodically.

HUGH ALLAN IS STANDING

President of Victoria Conservative Ass'n Throws Hat in Ring

Hugh Allan, president of the Victoria Conservative Association and manager for J. W. Jones & Company, made definite announcement last evening of his intention to stand as a candidate for nomination at the Conservative convention on August 2 to select the man who will carry the party's colors in the Victoria Federal riding.

Mr. Allan made his announcement briefly and simply before Ward Four Conservatives met to choose delegates to the convention. After dealing with association affairs, Mr. Allan said:

DECLARES STAND
 "I think it is only fair to say now that I have been approached by a number of persons to allow my name to go before the convention on August 2 as a candidate for nomination by the party. After very careful consideration, I have consented to the request."

"I would like it clearly understood that this does not mean a 'split' in the party, for as far as I am concerned, if I am not the one selected, I will do my best to work with a will for the man who is," Mr. Allan said, to applause.

TWO IN RUNNING
 Two names are now definitely in the field for the Conservative nomination in Victoria, D. B. Plunkett, the sitting member, having previously signified his intention of offering himself at the convention.

Ward Four Conservatives chose thirty-eight delegates, and ten alternates to the central meeting, floor of the meeting H. F. Hewitt presided.

EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE
 Senator G. H. Burnard, who was congratulated on fifty years' residence in the city, spoke briefly. He said that for twenty-seven years Victoria had remained a Conservative seat in the House of Commons.

When electors weighed the evidence of positive and tangible policies expressed by the Conservative Party on the one hand, against the absence of policy and the evasion of issues expressed by opponents of the Ottawa administration on the other, there would be little doubt of the outcome, he concluded.

Italy's Press Makes New Massed Attack On Britain and Japan

Object to London Authorizing Arms Shipments to Ethiopia—Charge Japan Trying to Get Foothold in Africa Against Europe

ROME, July 23 (AP).—A new mass attack against Britain was launched this afternoon in the Italian press, which announced that "Italy will remember" Britain's reported decision to lift the arms embargo against Ethiopia. Editorial attack on Japan's alleged expansionist policy in Africa continued.

A Government spokesman, meanwhile, said yesterday's royal decree lowering the legal limit of the lira's gold coverage, did not mean the currency would be devalued.

The step was taken, he said, in order to enable Italy to make payments abroad amounting to 500,000,000 lire.

HAD TO PURSUE PATIENT BY AIR

Doctor and Nurse Find Sick Man Gone After Emergency Call

BELLA COOLA, July 23 (AP).—Dr. H. E. Maclean, superintendent of the Bella Coola Mission Hospital, reports an Indian patient recovering from an illness although the superintendent was forced to pursue his patient by airplane and saddle horse before he could be brought to the hospital.

Word was received here that an Indian of the Alagatcho tribe, living in their village on the shores of Gatcho Lake, about 100 miles northeast of here, was ill and wanted to be brought out to the hospital in an airplane.

OVER THE PEAKS
 Pilot W. R. MacLuskey, of Ocean Falls, flew Dr. Maclean, Iver Fougner, Indian agent, and a nurse, Miss M. Stevens, over the 10,000-foot peaks of the Coast Range and landed at the village. The party found the sick Indian had taken up his bed and started riding over the rugged mountain trail to Bella Coola.

The doctor commended a sagacious and brave rescue. He overtook his patient within a few hours and brought him back to the plane. After the return flight, the sea was too rough to alight at Bella Coola so a landing was effected in South Bentinck Arm and the passengers were taken to the hospital in a tug boat.

Police Arrest Hundred and Fifty Following Disturbances in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 23 (AP).—Wholesale police raids today resulted in the arrest of 150 persons suspected of participation in the eleven days of death and terrorism that have followed the celebration of Orangemen's Day.

Lord Chief Justice Sir William Moore, addressing the grand jury at the opening of the Belfast city commission, promised severe punishment for those responsible for the rioting that led to nine deaths, property destruction, strikes and near religious warfare.

Sir William denounced the "irreconcilables of both sides" as persons who "hate their neighbors for the love of God."

Threat Made to Legislate Jews Out of Germany

Nazis' Big Drive Swerves From Catholics and War Veterans to Be Directed at Hebrews—Hitler Not Tolerating Further Dissolution of Local Steel Helmet Groups

BERLIN, July 23 (P).—A threat to legislate Jews out of Germany was the loudest gun fired today in the Nazis' big drive against "reactionaries," as it swerved temporarily away from Catholics and war veterans to smash at Hebrews.

Julius Streicher, husky, bald Nazi boss of Franconia, who is considered the soul of Nazism's hatred of Jews, voiced the threat in an address at Bernau, suburb of Berlin. He emphatically predicted anti-Semitic laws "to put Jews in their places"—the first time any high official had said anti-Semitism "must" be made part of German law.

Streicher's decree, expected to be duplicated in other states, said separate veterans' organizations imperiled German unity. Officials of the Steel Helmet veterans' organization quickly expressed fear that dissolution of their formation would follow.

However, Franz Sedlitz, Adolf Hitler's Minister of the Interior and founder and leader of the Stahlhelm, finally located Der Fuehrer at Berchtesgaden, and returned to Berlin with the conviction that Hitler would not tolerate further dissolution of local Steel Helmet groups.

GOERING'S DECREE
Action against Catholics was confined to General Hermann Wilhelm Goering's decree dissolving the Catholic war veterans' organization in Prussia, of which he is Premier. In another move to crush "political Catholics."

There is a redraft of the old, in most cases. Boards are required to keep books and minutes, to arrange for election of members, and their members will not be personally liable for any act undertaken in good faith under provincial statute. Each board is to have a chairman, vice-chairman and a secretary, and these may be paid out of the product handled.

The "penalty" clause is repeated. It provides for fines of not less than $25 and not over $500 for breaches of the statute and regulations; or for imprisonment not exceeding three months in jail.

MOST B.C. PRODUCTS
Coupled with the fact that Provincial officials have been working towards single marketing agencies, to be approved by the Province or its officers, the new regulations place a wide measure of direct control in the hands of the Provincial Markets Board and the Government of the Province. The Natural Products Marketing Act itself can be made to cover all natural products save minerals and metals, or approximately three-quarters of all primary industrial activity in British Columbia.

Two other orders were passed during the day affecting marketing. One reconstitutes the personnel of the Federally-created British Columbia Tree Fruits Board, its membership is composed of Walter E. Haskins, George A. Barrat and Orin W. Hembling.

Another order reopened the British Columbia coast vegetable marketing scheme to remove a reservation in respect to territory south of the forty-ninth parallel.

She was born at Westbourne, Man., being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bell, and with them she moved, at an early age, to Portage la Prairie, where she resided until moving to Winnipeg in 1901. She was keenly interested in matters of public moment, and a member of the Women's Canadian Club and the Alumnae Association of Wesley College.

Besides her husband, Edwin Loftus, K.C., she is survived by one son, Edwin B. Loftus; three sisters and four brothers. The funeral was held on Monday, interment being at Portage la Prairie.

Crews of American Vessels Strike in Vancouver—Others Deported

VANCOUVER, July 23 (P).—No progress was reported tonight toward settlement of the strike of the crews of two United States vessels in port here who refuse to work on the ground that the ships are being loaded with "unfair" cargo.

The crew of a third ship, Ss. Point Ancho of the Gulf Pacific Line, has been deported by immigration authorities.

The steamer Golden State of the Oceanic & Oriental Navigation Company is moored at Ballantyne Pier loading for Australia. Her crew are being kept aboard by a guard of Royal Canadian Mounted Police and it is reported that they too may be deported if a settlement is not reached soon.

READY TO SAIL
The other vessel, Ss. West Mahwah, also at Ballantyne Pier, is now loaded and ready to sail for Gulf of Mexico and South America, but the crew refuse to move the vessel with the alleged "unfair" cargo aboard and she will probably remain here pending action of the owners in San Francisco.

The ships were loaded by cranes on the pier after the crew had refused to provide steam for the winches.

SNUB FOR ETHIOPIA
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, July 23 (P).—A "snub" by the Italian minister failed to disturb Ethiopia's celebration of Emperor Haile Selassie's forty-fourth birthday anniversary today, which temporarily interrupted this nation's preparations for possible war.

The Italian envoy, Luigi Orazio Conte Vince-Gigliucci, refused to attend because of the tenor of the Emperor's fighting speech before Parliament last week.

The birthday was celebrated with royal splendor at the palace, and with popular enthusiasm in the streets of Addis Ababa.

REBUFFS AT ROME
LONDON, July 23 (CP-AP).—Great Britain made progress at Paris today in her efforts to assure discussion of the entire Italo-Ethiopian situation at Geneva, but met renewed rebuffs at Rome.

Premier Pierre Laval of France told Sir George Russell Clerk, the British ambassador, he would support the British plan for full discussion of all Italo-Ethiopian issues at the League of Nations council session next week. That was as far as Laval would go, however, informed quarters reported.

Sir Eric Drummond, the ambassador to Rome, meanwhile reported lack of progress.

Despite all efforts, he had not succeeded in getting Premier Benito Mussolini to agree to place Italy's entire case before the league body, or submit his views concerning possible avenues toward peace.

The cabinet meets tomorrow. Evidence of the British feeling that hostilities are virtually inevitable, was seen in instructions to British missionaries in Ethiopia that they should send their wives and children out of the country immediately.

PLANS FOR TREATY
PARIS, July 23 (P).—France, agreeing with Great Britain to seek full discussion of the whole Italo-Ethiopian issue at Geneva, today, was authoritatively reported planning to try to negotiate an Italo-Ethiopian treaty giving Italy economic domination of Ethiopia.

In exchange, it was stated, Benito Mussolini would agree to respect the African Empire's nominal independence, thus averting war.

It was pointed out such an agreement could be accepted by the League of Nations as a solution. This would take care of objections that an Italian protectorate over

OVERDUE PLANE REPORTED SAFE

Machine Bound From Seattle to Ketchikan Forced Into Prince Rupert by Fog

PRINCE RUPERT, July 23 (P).—A seaplane carrying N. A. Sokoloff, vice-president of Amtorg, Inc. (Russian trading company), landed here this evening from Alert Bay, after being reported twenty-four hours overdue on a flight from Seattle to Ketchikan.

The plane, piloted by Jerry Smith, was forced into Prince Rupert by fog encountered in the flight from Alert Bay to the Alaskan city. The flight will be continuing tomorrow.

Sokoloff was en route north to establish communication posts at Akavik and Fort Simpson, N.W.T. (for the proposed Russian flight from Moscow to California via the North Pole).

NEW WATERFORD, N.S., July 23 (P).—Throwing the weight of their numbers into a drive for a closed shop, more than 1,100 United Mine Workers today tied up the Dominion Coal Company's No. 12 Colliery by refusing to work with rival Amalgamated Mine Workers.

REGINA, July 23 (P).—Hon. T. C. Davis, Saskatchewan Attorney-General, today prohibited the Wood Mountain buffalo hunt. Action followed protest the hunt would be extremely cruel.

WASHINGTON HAS SIXTY-MILE GALE
WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 23 (P).—A dust storm described by witnesses as the worst in the history of Southeast Washington, struck between Walla Walla and the Walla Walla River, on the Inland Empire Highway tonight.

Motorists arriving here declared the wind reached a velocity of between sixty and seventy miles an hour, "strong enough to move an automobile with the emergency brake set."

Not so many people, however, are familiar with the equally telling advantages of the newer Hupmobiles.

Don't realize, for example, that they are considerably lower in price than any of the genuine steel-lined cars? That they are conceded to present the most highly reduced and "finished" appearance among all cars of this type?

That their performance is amazing as it SHOULD be, with greater horsepower than any car of comparable weight and wheelbase? That they embody practically every worthwhile feature of the best cars, and equally important advances of their own?

Face like these are too important to ignore. No one who wants the most for his money can afford to decide without considering them. Look before you buy, of course!—And don't overlook Hupmobile.

FORMER LOCAL PITCHER DIES

James Holness Succumbs in Hospital Here—Was Well Known as Baseballer

The Great Empire has called three strikes on one of the greatest baseball players ever to play here. James Holness, 815 Caledonia Avenue, famous pitcher of twenty-five years ago, died yesterday at the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

He was fifty-six years of age. His passing recalled to sportsmen of this city a sparkling game he pitched against a strong Venatchee team here, when he struck out nineteen men and allowed only one hit. On another occasion he fanned twenty-three batters in a row. It was a record at that time. Mr. Holness was the main half of the battery team of Bernie Schwenger and Holness.

PLAYED LEADING CLUBS From 1898 to 1908 Mr. Holness pitched for many Victoria teams, including the Victoria, Foundation and Sons of Canada. He played on representative nines which, at that time, played leading ball clubs of the Pacific Coast. Hal Chase, who later became first baseman for the New York Giants, played on the same team.

By trade Mr. Holness was a woodworker. He was employed as a planer in the old Taylor mill, and was a steeper in the Sayward and Moore-Whitcomb mills. Later he was employed in the warehouse of the Liquor Control Board.

THOSE WHO SURVIVE Mr. Holness is survived by his widow, four daughters, Evelyn, Irene and Vera, at home, and Mrs. A. G. Sargent, 1140 Chapman Street; three sons, William and Harry, at the family residence, and Robert in Vancouver; and four sisters: Mrs. J. Woodruff, Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. S. Taverner, and Mrs. R. Shanks, all of Victoria.

The two sons, William and Harry, are members of the Victoria City Baseball League. The remains rest at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlor and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

GOVERNMENT ADDING WING

Anticipated Cost of New T.B. Hospital—Clinic Put at $100,000

While only rough sketch plans exist as yet, a projected new Provincial extension to the Vancouver General Hospital for tubercular preventive service may cost in excess of $100,000. Premier Pattullo yesterday announced that the Government would build a tubercular wing as a clinical centre in the Vancouver area.

The Government's decision followed conference between Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, Dr. W. H. Hatfield, new Provincial director of tubercular control, and other Government officials.

THREE-STORY BLOCK Preliminary plans call for a three-story concrete structure, to be built as an extension wing to what was once the University Building. Provision is spoken of for seventy beds and other equipment to match. Its exact cost has not yet been ascertained.

Commenting on the decision to go ahead with construction of the new wing as an addition to the Vancouver General Hospital, Premier Pattullo said:

COSTS GROWING

"We must pay more attention to preventive work, and it is our aim in this campaign. Our curative costs are mounting all the time. The only way they can be lowered is by preventing the disease in the first place. While this may be costly at the outset, in the long run it is the cheapest, as well as the most satisfactory."

Clinical facilities will be incorporated in the new wing to be built with Provincial funds.

COUNCIL DEBATES RELIEF PROBLEM

Committee's Action Confirmed in Connection With Treatment of Families in Camp

Mayor David Leeming, on behalf of the relief committee, submitted at the City Council meeting last night, a rebuttal to the charges contained in letters to the press that families in the Sunshine Camp for under-privileged mothers and children were being treated unfairly in connection with relief allowances.

It was pointed out that only a 25 per cent reduction had been made in the allowances, while the family was in camp, and that this amount saved such families a greater share of relief than those who were not privileged to go to camp.

The council was divided on the matter, some of the members claiming that it did not seem right to cut the allowance while the family was in camp, while others contended that if the 100 persons privileged to go to camp were to be given a greater share of relief, then the other 800 families on relief were entitled to a similar bonus.

For the council to alter its relief policy would mean the upsetting of the entire basis upon which allowances are made, it was contended. The relief committee was confirmed in its action, but when the relief committee was taken, there were several who voted no. However, a show of hands to determine the division was not asked.

A CLEAN SWEEP

It must be something in the nature of a record in the history of provincial politics that a solid representation of Liberals should have been returned at a general election. That, at all events, is the record that now goes to Prince Edward Island. Obviously the tide of Liberalism in the Atlantic provinces has been turned, and nowhere has it surged up with such compelling force as in the far Eastern Province. Comment on a result of this character is a work of supererogation. It has just got to be admitted, for the time being, that Conservatism has fallen on evil days. The result in Prince Edward Island would probably have been just the same if any of the new political parties in the country had tried their luck at the polls in that province.

PLAIN SPEAKING

It is the acme of duplicity for politicians to promise what they cannot perform. The credulity of the masses never wavers. The belief persists that rosy prognostications of how the future can be shaped are always true. There is both nonsense and political bribery in this outlook. With the advance of education, and presumably, the inculcation of logic in the human mind, there should be appreciation of the fitness of things, of the ability of human effort to perform, of the chances of fulfillment on the basis of past experience, of the limitations that are imposed by actualities, of human frailty itself. There is too much of a belief that mankind never is but to be blessed. There is evasion of the crosses that humanity has inevitably to bear. There is a constant effort to find an easy way out of difficulties. The belief is all wrong, socially, politically, economically and in every other way.

There is no new deal that will solve the problems of any particular phase of human life. The term "new deal" is a shibboleth of the times, and the most disappointing of all the slogans which have been impressed on humanity. It is simply a political term, designed for party reasons. We have the spectacle in the present Federal election campaign in this country of promises galore, of declarations of what parties will do to cure the ills of humanity, of how a political Utopia will be created overnight. The credulity of the people is positively pitiful. It is a reproach on the pride we take in the advances made in national education which seems to have been successful in everything save basing the logic of events on the background of experience. Unquestionably when the future historian bears down in perspective on the present times he will comment on the futility of human wishes and the lavish promises of politicians, which even they know they can never perform. In this world of credulity the redemptive feature is a few sane minds. One of these is Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who faces facts. One of his utterances is symptomatic. He says: "We are being censured for not having any considered plan. I have never been a slave of a word. If there is a word that has been ridden to death today it is the word plan. I have seen nothing of planning in any foreign country that would lead me to think it is a universal panacea. I don't exactly know what plan is. For some kind of plans there are books and pamphlets undertaking to cure unemployment. I have never promised to cure unemployment. I have taken risks for unemployment. I never promised to cure unemployment, and I shall never stand on a platform with anybody who does promise it."

That is plain speaking. It should act as a monitor to the politicians in our country.

CAPITALISM AND WAR

Socialist writers and orators have made a brave show of argument in support of their oft-repeated assertion that the thrice accursed system of capitalism is the chief cause of war between one country and another; that the Great War itself was due to the operation of the "profit motive" and nothing else; that if we are really in earnest in our expressed desire for world peace we have but to destroy capitalism and all its works and establish a beneficent regime of Socialism everywhere.

Taking the statement as it stands it is surely a hard saying. Nevertheless the Socialist affirms his conviction that there is no possible chance of maintaining peace among the nations, to say nothing of achieving peace within our own borders, unless we overturn our entire economic system, abolish private property, and wholeheartedly accept Socialism as a creed and the priests and prophets of Socialism as our rulers and governors. Moreover, he affirms it with supreme confidence and tremendous emphasis, and has in some cases almost, if not altogether, persuaded some of his hearers that it is their duty to support the sacred cause of Socialism as the logical first step towards achieving the much-to-be-desired international peace.

In his recent book, "Preface to Peace," Sir Norman Angell devotes a chapter of some twenty pages to the Socialist claim that capitalism as a system needs, and benefits by, war, and indeed is the cause of war, because by means of war it can acquire new markets, dispose of its surplus of production and thus increase its profits. He points out that in order to prove these Socialist claims it will be necessary to show that the military and naval power of a capitalist state wishing to expand its markets can seize territory and compel the population to buy goods, or can make loans to foreign countries and collect the interest by force. The whole history of war repudiates every point that such reparations, debts, and interest on foreign investments simply cannot be collected. British, French, and American financial experts exhausted every resource of ingenuity to devise ways and means of making Germany pay, and without any result. The same is true of the relations between American financiers and those South and Central American states to which money was lent. Quite a dozen of these states are now in default to the United States, which certainly possesses an immense preponderance of military and naval power; and yet bankers do not know of any way by which these debts can be collected.

The picture which Socialists draw of imperialistic powers struggling to obtain raw materials, or markets for their own surplus goods, or new areas of investment, and employing force to collect debts, is, in Sir Norman Angell's opinion, utterly untrue to the facts. The course of events during the post-war era makes complete nonsense of such a picture. The truth is, he concludes, that the popular Marxian interpretation of the relation of war to capitalism is out of date.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Through the years the question of garbage disposal has been a live issue in this municipality. The present system is primitive in the extreme, little better than methods that probably were employed a few thousand years ago. Now the proposal of the City Council is that the beaches should be cleared up regularly of the litter of garbage which returns from the sea where disposal of it is made. What beaches are included in this arrangement? How many men are available for the task? To what extent will the beaches benefit? It seems as if the City Council were concerned mainly with the effect and not the cause. There are two causes: one is the manner of disposal of city garbage; the other is the fact that vessels plying between here and nearby ports seem to select the vicinity of Victoria to dump their garbage, irrespective of the state of the tides.

—There is no solution of the garbage disposal problem of Victoria, save by some entirely new method. Under the present dispensation the city seems to have no method of supervision. As a result the beaches are littered with refuse and their popularity decreases. In fact little or no effort has ever been made to popularize beaches within the municipality. They are a disgrace, and the endless chatter that has been wasted on this fact is a reproach to our City Council. Garbage disposal in this vicinity should be by the medium of an incinerator. That fact was established twenty years ago. In civic matters we move lamentably slowly in Victoria. It is only by unending prodding that any advances are accomplished.

LET ITALY PAUSE

They (the Abyssinians) will not allow Italians to penetrate adjacent Ethiopian territory commercially, and are in fact bad neighbors. These views are understood, and some of them are perhaps justified. But their importance does not entitle Italy to run completely counter to the treaties and other agreements which she herself has signed. Her policy is not in accordance, for instance, with the separate treaties which she has signed with Ethiopia and with Great Britain and France; it is contrary to the spirit of the Kellogg Pact and of the Covenant. It threatens the very foundations of the collective system. It casts renewed doubts upon the value of treaties, even those which have been signed spontaneously. For these reasons British public opinion views with profound misgivings the Italian policy towards Ethiopia, and it wholeheartedly supports the Government in any proposals which they may still consider to have the slightest prospect of producing a peaceful solution.—The London Times.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

He who imagines he can do without the world deceives himself much; but he who imagines the world cannot do without him is under still greater deception.—La Rochefoucauld.

Columnistic commentators are nearly all agreed that this is a mad world. Editorial commentators, feeling a deeper sense of responsibility, do not go so far as that, but they will at least agree that the world is suffering from some form of simple dementia. As a matter of fact, there is nothing wrong with the world at all. It is the people in the world who are simple and credulous, and what is the matter with the people is that they are ready to listen to the idle chatter of every charlatan who can get on a political platform, into the Legislature or into a pulpit and spout out his or her absurd or silly plans for the material salvation of the common people.

If the people of the world were not suffering from a simple form of dementia which may become acute, they would put down their feet crushingly upon a movement which is becoming generally manifest, a disposition to mix politics with religion. The people of Canada are not at present sorely afflicted by that form of folly, for the political parties in Canada have not yet succeeded in organizing a religious political party. They are merely bringing religion into politics through exoteric political parties. They proclaim that peace and prosperity is their object, but, according to the lessons of history, there is nothing more dangerous to the peace of the nations of the world than the mixing of politics with religion. More blood has been shed and more suffering has been inflicted by bigots leading political and religious movements in combination than ever has been justified by results achieved.

Germany is at present engaged in a hazardous experiment of government by a political and religious fanatic. Hitler is trying to abolish revealed religion and establish a religion which he calls national, but which is actually personal. There is practically a state of war between Germany and generally accepted religion. Russia has officially abolished all forms of religion, unless worship of a political fanatic can be called a form of religion. There is an appearance of peace in Russia, but it is a peace maintained by force of arms after more letting of blood than is likely to be shed in the threatened war between Italy and Ethiopia. There will assuredly be bloody strife in Europe before the national religion system of Germany shall be established.

The times must be terribly out of joint when the people of England, so devoted to the principles of peace, the arts of industry and the established order of good government, can be moved by the jargon or the eloquence of a demonstrated demagogue. But it seems the commentators were mistaken when they assumed that a certain Welsh agitator had exploded his last political bomb and applied a match to his last political Catherine wheel.

The people of England are the most tolerant people in their religious views of any people in the world. They regard religion as a personal matter and of no concern at all to the community. When a man of great force of character, acknowledged intellectual power, nimble tongue and flow of language and towering ambition, has won an eminent public position and has been accustomed to the plaudits of the multitude, has been relegated to a position of comparative obscurity, we may be sure that man will not be content to remain a mere spectator of the procession.

Mr. David Lloyd George found that the occupation of a farmer was too tame for one who had sat in the seats of the mighty. He worked out a plan based upon the New Deal of President Roosevelt and submitted it to Prime Minister Baldwin, accompanied by a suggestion that if accepted he might become a member of the Government and help to set the plan in motion. Both the suggestions were rejected; but potentates of the disjecting churches of England had formed a new ecclesiastical political party of Peace and Reconciliation, and Mr. Lloyd George joined that party, and already has made himself the leader and a burning and shining light in it.

Thus England, which delights in religious tranquility and loves peace at almost any price, is confronted with a situation in which politics and religion are mixed and is viewing a field in which the seeds of bitter strife have been sown. We see by the papers that in Ireland the people have again been killing each other for the love of God. We may see by the papers before many days that the people of England have become involved in fratricidal strife to gratify the inordinate and unquenchable ambition of Mr. David Lloyd George. The leader of the new political party in England, like the leader of a new political party in Canada, has promised to provide work and wages for all the unemployed in Canada, a young and new country, but it never has been attained in England, where there always have been chronically unemployed; yet there are more people employed in England today than at any period in the long history of the country. The ban of any country, however, is its irresponsible demagogues.

Vacation Vacations!

One Scotsman residing on Beebe Street spent a morbid Sunday. Combining the miserably miserable for him, he came across a Brantford Courier, dated July 26, 1897. This was a signal for the Scot to pass the whole day in the pining of thirty-eight years ago. Another denizen of Beebe Street passed Sunday morning taking pot shots at a hornet's nest with a slingshot. . . . Just to show his girl that he was a great big man, one of the Colonist office boys refrained from shaving for two weeks and presented himself to his sweetie one night with a microscopic stubble. . . . Meeting in a soldiers' pub recently, a number of ex-service men, the Emperor of Abyssinia a cable offering their services in case of war. Did you have anything to do with it?—G. B.

The Helping Hand!

And then there's the story of the young news reporter who took his girl to the wharf to see the Princess Louise. She was waiting, and east off the wrong hawser just to give the longshoremen a hand. "You can see I'm no strike breaker," he commented proudly to his girl. At that moment the ship's whistle blew. "What's happened to that forward line? How do you expect to warp the ship off this dock?" You can imagine the news reporter's embarrassment as he endeavored to hide his confusion, while another forward line was cast ashore to hold the bow while the ship's stern was swung around.—P. C. R.

And They Knew the Words!

The big delegation of Business and Professional Women which came over last week-end from the national convention in Seattle did many things that left a happy impression, but one of the most striking was the wholehearted way in which they joined in the singing of our national anthem, "God Save the King." In fact, they sang it with much more fervor than some of our own.—J. E. M. B.

And That Would Be Long Enough!

We would not mind how many political parties or how many candidates were to run in the coming Federal election if a law was enforced limiting all speakers to three minutes at one—and only one campaign meeting in Victoria.—N. A. C. M.

Keeping Company

Hank, the Philosopher, says: "I nearly picked myself up a snappy blonde yesterday. I got in the same section of a revolving door as her and we started going round together.—W. I. F."

Let's Be Different

Here's a tip for someone who's inclined to be ingenious. It's free, anyway. Talking to a tourist director who visited Victoria last week, he thought such a "different" city in bidding for tourists, business should have something different in the way of a souvenir to offer visitors. He said that after a round of all the places where one would expect to find such things for sale, he couldn't find anything that he couldn't find in the stores of any Pacific Coast town or city. A distinctive souvenir, neither bulky nor expensive, characteristic of the city and the Island, would find a ready sale, and help to keep up the city's reputation for distinctiveness.—F. M. K.

Half Measure, Bossy!

Well, a Federal marketing law, a provincial marketing law, a Federal milk board, a provincial milk board, and the earnest thought of two Ministers of Agriculture would appear to have not yet won peace and harmony in the Greater Vancouver milkshed. Can it be possible there is too much milk in the Fraser Valley, and that one should be regulating the cows and not the men? Or, again, are the cows so stupid because they insist on flying in the face of nature by calling dairymen "milk-producers"? In the country where I once lived, they kept two pigs for every cow to use up the skim milk; but that was a simple backward country, not verred in the newer cult of science in agriculture.—S. G.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of July 24, 1885.)

Thriller Confusion.—A large audience witnessed the performance last night at the Theatre Comique, and a continued round of applause and laughter attested the excellence of the programme. A new feature of the entertainment was an artist named J. B. who, during his performance, was able to perform the world-famous "Punch and Judy" act, which was a most wonderful feat of strength. On Saturday afternoon a matinee will be given.

The Coast Fisheries.—A gentleman who has visited most of the salmon centres since the result of the fisheries at Nanaimo, on the Skeena River, there is a shortage of 100,000 cases in British Columbia a similar shortage. On the Columbia River a shortage of 150,000 to 200,000 cases, and at Alaska a shortage of 20,000 cases—making in all a decreased pack of at least 250,000 cases. An encouraging feature of the present year's market is that American markets are already relieving the British markets and may have a tendency to advance rates.

The Wildwood Burned.—The steamer Wildwood was burned in the water's edge at Olympia, Wednesday morning. The cost $110,000 originally and was insured for $9,000.

Letters to the Editor

No letter to the Editor will be inserted except over the proper signature and address of the writer. This rule admits no exceptions. No letter should exceed 50 words in length.

A DISCLAIMER

Sir,—Through the medium of your paper I wish to disclaim any relationship or connection with J. Lackie, of Ontario Street, connected with the longshoremen's strike in Victoria. I am, E. LECKIE, 24 Saint Juan Avenue, Victoria, B.C., July 22, 1935.

CONDITION OF BEACHES

Sir,—To the members of the parks and beaches board of Greater Victoria, may I say that now the summer months are here and vast crowds take to the beaches, I think something should be done to clear the beaches. I am going to refer to Cadboro Bay Beach. I think that a gang of relief men could be sent there every day to remove the stones that make the beach so miserable for those who wish to go into the water, and I am sure it would make Cadboro Bay a 100 per cent better beach. Lots of seaweed, as well, could be cleared away. Hoping this will be looked into at once.

JOSHUA TAYLOR

M.B.D. No. 1, Victoria, B.C., July 22, 1935.

YEW TREES

Sir,—Yews are not among our commonest trees. They are graceful and beautiful in some ways, and they are present in considerable numbers in various stages of growth on the eastern slopes of Mount Douglas.

In a few years' time I venture to predict there will be few of these trees left alive in this area. They have been rapidly killed by having the bark gnawed by goats. Almost every tree you see there is entirely or partially ringed, with the marks of the animals' teeth visible on many of them. Only those escape which are too small or too large for a goat to gnaw.

Other trees are suffering—willows, balsams, even dogwoods—but the yew seems to be the goats' favorite and the destruction is everywhere visible to anyone who knows the tree when he sees it.

1145 View Street, Victoria, B.C., July 23, 1935.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Sir,—In today's Colonist I notice that the unemployed are to clean the beaches along the waterfront—brilliant idea. On this same day, the tourist can see a sea of festering garbage extending about seventy feet from the beach between Clover Point and Cook Street. Our cleansing department is for taking the garbage from our backyards and dumping it at the front door of the city. I hope the authorities will not only supply boats, or perhaps they'll rather wait till it washes ashore so that the sun may get in some work on it.

I have no expectation that this letter will have any direct effect upon this long-standing error, but I have hopes that by bringing the matter before the public through your influential columns, something may be done to save the good name of this city.

Discloses Part in Plot to Get People To Commit Crimes

Witness Tells Vancouver Court He Had Agreement With Detective Sergeant to Hire Cars to Be Used in Burglaries

VANCOUVER, July 23 (P)—With the evidence disclosing a plan between a detective sergeant and a witness to induce people to commit crimes, Judge J. N. Ellis in County Court today expressed the opinion it was not a case for secrecy and he refused Crown counsel's request to suppress a name which came out in the testimony.

Dora Brown, David H. Roy and Roland Swan were being tried on a charge of retaining in their possession on May 14 a quantity of tobacco, cigarettes and merchandise stolen from the store of J. R. Roane on East Hastings Street.

L. T. Welsh, who admitted serving prison terms for robbery with violence and extortion, testified he worked under Detective Sergeant J. J. Nicholson and that the officer gave him $15 to hire cars used in burglarizing Roane's store.

ENGAGED BY ADVISER—Witness said he had been sent by J. A. Russell to Major T. G. McLellan, Police Chief W. W. Foster's legal adviser, and that Major McLellan engaged him. He worked until June for the police without pay other than his expenses, he explained.

Welsh said Swan had stated he knew of several places which could easily be robbed if he had a car, so the witness spoke to Nicholson and that latter, as he testified, gave him the money to get the car. When he hired the car, he was accompanied by Franklin H. Robinson, witness said, after Crown Prosecutor W. S. Owen argued he should not be compelled to reveal the name.

HELED CARRY LOOT—The three accused, witness said, drove out to Roane's store and Swan and himself entered and he assisted Swan to carry out the loot, later valued at $100 to $125. Nicholson watched the quartette from another car parked nearby, he said.

The accused were arrested next day. In the meantime, it was testified, they broke into Ellis's Men's Market and stole some butter and tins of soup.

T. P. Hurley, counsel for Roy, asked him if he knew the chief of police said he was never employed by the police.

Welsh said he was employed by Major McLellan, who gave him to understand he was working for the police. He said that Nicholson knew the money was to be used in perpetrating crimes.

The trial will resume tomorrow.

Convention Delegates Appointed

Delegates to the convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to be held at Harrison Hot Springs were appointed at last night's meeting of the City Council.

The delegates are as follows: Mayor David Leeming, Aldermen Walter Loney, Alex Peden, James Adam, Andrew McGowan, T. W. Hawkins and Robert Dewar. The need for a strong delegation this year is due to the fact that the city has some important motions coming before the convention.

The convention here on August 5, 6 and 7, bids fair to be one of the outstanding meetings in the Pacific Northwest this year. Registrations are being received in large numbers, and the local committee has worked at high speed to make this conclave a notable one in the annals of the association.

In connection with the convention, Victoria, through the activities of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, has received valuable publicity throughout Canada, especially through such publications as Western Druggist, Canadian Pharmaceutical Journal and Drug Merchandising. FINE CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

Large Throng Joins in Spirit Of Entertainment on Show Boat

Victoria's "Show Boat" is passing from one success to another, and last night's entertainment by the 16th Canadian Scottish Band was no exception to the rule. Sponsored by the Tourist Trade Development Association, the concert, given primarily for visitors in the city, are drawing wonderful crowds. Last night there were between 3,500 and 4,000 persons in the grandstands on the C.P.R. pier, and lined around the Causeway.

Under the direction of T. H. Elick, secretary of the Tourist Trade Development Association, the crowds have thrown restraint to the winds, and join heartily in community singing in between the various band selections. Mr. Elick's cordial and informal welcome to the visitors also helps to build up a spirit of intimacy, so that those present become participants in the entertainment.

Tonight "The Joy Peddlars" will provide a versatile programme, and on Friday night the 5th (B.C.) Coast Brigade Band, under the direction of Alfred Prescott, will provide the entertainment on the illuminated barge. On Thursday evening the 16th Canadian Scottish Pipe Band will play retreat on the Legislative Building steps and will give a programme of Highland music.

Last night's programme was as follows:

T.B. STATIONS ARE PROPOSED

City Council Hears Scheme for Combating Disease—Local Clinic Planned

Part of the scheme to combat tuberculosis was outlined in a report submitted to the City Council last night by Dr. Richard Felton, city medical health officer who attended the conference called in Vancouver recently by the Provincial Health Department.

The conference has recommended that three tubercular handling stations be established in the province, one of which would be at the Royal Jubilee Hospital tubercular pavilion. This station would handle all localization of in-patients, and the rate proposed is $2.50 per day, of which the city would share $1.25. It was explained, however, that patients from other municipalities would be charged to the district in which they were resident.

Three stationary tubercular clinics for the purpose of diagnosis and treatment would be established, one to be at the Jubilee Hospital. These three stations also would conduct traveling clinics. It was reported, however, the plans are purely tentative and more definite information will be provided later. The Mayor expressed the view, however, that it would result in another social service burden being placed on the city.

BOARDS OF TRADE FAVOR IMPROVEMENT OF FISHING AREAS

The Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, in an effort to improve fishing conditions, went on record at the recent annual meeting in support of the improvement of the Departure Bay Pacific Biological Station, and of having two surveys conducted.

One survey was sought from the Provincial and Federal Governments to cover fully the biological aspects of the lakes and rivers on the Island with a view to restocking. Another sought a survey of the East Coast of Vancouver Island to determine grise areas and salmon runs leading to spawning grounds, with a view to protecting the salmon on their way to spawning grounds. Endorsement was given the request being made for the installation of public telephones on the Malahat Drive. The associated boards also sought a reduction in ferry rates on automobiles traveling by boat between Vancouver and Nanaimo.

B.C. Travel Bureau Would Do Much for Industry, Says George I. Warren

To meet the increasing competition in the field of tourist advertising, there is need for a special Provincial Government department to encourage the tourist trade in British Columbia, according to George I. Warren, Victoria publicity commissioner. By this, Mr. Warren stated, he did not mean to belittle or discredit the expensive work done by the Information and Publicity Bureau of British Columbia.

However, he did see the need for the expenditure of more money annually to advertise the entire Province and attract more tourists here. At present the United States Senate is considering a bill that aims to establish a special commission for that work in America. The bill, of which Mr. Warren has a copy, sets forth the machinery of the new committee in a manner which indicates a particularly strong challenge to the drawing power of British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

OUT FOR TOURISTS
Switzerland, New Zealand, Mexico and Japan have all embarked on aggressive advertising campaigns and have established large travel bureaus at home and abroad. Thus they are making a strong bid for travelers. Mr. Warren pointed out the power of British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

"My belief is," declared the publicity commissioner, "that there is no area of a similar size on the North American continent that offers a more diversified list of natural scenic and tourist attractions than the Province of British Columbia, and that the aggressive advertising of the Greater Vancouver Publicity Bureau and the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau carried on during the last ten years or more should be considerably augmented by an extensive campaign featuring the entire Province and its natural attractions and advantages."

Continuing Mr. Warren said: "The Federal Government has established the Canadian Travel Bureau under D. Leo Dolan, recognizing the value of the tourist industry and vowing $250,000 this year for advertising purposes in the United States. As a result of this campaign, 21,000 inquiries have been received and forwarded to all publicly bureaus in the Dominion to answer. The different travel bureaus, as far as possible, sent out literature and data with information regarding the tourist attractions in their individual and immediate districts."

QUEBEC IN LEAD
"Quebec has taken the lead among the provinces in developing tourist travel and that province this year spent nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The Province of Ontario for a number of years has had a Provincial tourist bureau," he explained.

"This year, already, the Province of New Brunswick has inaugurated a policy of developing tourist trade and besides establishing a tourist bureau, has created a general tourist council or commission to act in an advisory capacity in the development of this important industry."

"Nova Scotia, as well, has taken steps along similar lines to that of New Brunswick."

"Each of these organizations mentioned has followed up the campaign on behalf of the Canadian Government," Mr. Warren concluded.

Water Colors Are Drawing Much Notice

An interesting exhibition of water-color paintings by Arthur H. Parker is attracting numbers of visitors to the little extemporized gallery at Fletcher Bros' music store this week.

Opened on Monday, the collection includes a large number of new paintings of British Columbia scenery, among them some lovely bits of Vancouver Island, all painted with the transparency and delicacy which are so typical of this artist's work.

There are, too, some charming Old World scenes, including "An English Wind-Swept Moor," "A Rainy Day in England," "Birches in the Mist" (which are very typical of certain districts in England and Scotland). To people from the Mid-Counties of England the thatched roofs and soft sunsets so happily combined in some of his pictures are specially appealing, as some of his sea scenes and English coast scene are to others. Among the latter is "Yachting at Cowes," bold in outline, with a sea of Mediterranean blue.

Noticeable among the paintings he has recently finished are some of those depicting the rugged mountains of the Rockies, sometimes with groves of firs and peaceful lakes resting at their feet. His sketches of Mount Baker and the Olympics in many moods and lights are declared by those who know the scenes to be poetically realistic.

Old Friends Hold Happy Gathering

A number of former Furness Railway (England) employees met in Victoria for a reunion during the past week-end and had a most enjoyable time renewing friendships, some of the members of the party not having met for twenty-five years. The party, through the assistance of Mr. F. G. Greenway, of the Surgical Appliance & Supply Co., was able to see all points of interest around Victoria and also visited Mr. Butchart's gardens.

The gathering was so successful that plans were made to make the event an annual one, the next to be held in Vancouver. The out-of-town visitors were T. S. Dickinson, of Port Angeles, formerly of Arm-side, England; Mr. and Mrs. W. Pennington, of Vancouver, formerly of Lake-side, England; Mr. and Mrs. J. Walls, of Moose Jaw, Sask., formerly of Sellafield, England; and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Smith, of Mel-burn, Sask., formerly of Bowmans-willmer, England. The visitors were entertained at luncheon on Sunday by Mrs. Greenway.

The members expressed the hope that any other former Furness Railway Co. men would get in touch with Mr. W. Pennington, 2157 Fifth Avenue, Vancouver, or Mr. G. Pennington, 4022 Kingsway, New West-minster, in order that they may be included in next year's reunion.

Plans Complete For Lethbridge Reunion Today

Everything is in readiness for the reunion of former residents of Leth-bridge now living in Victoria, to be held this afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock, in J. H. Richards' Tea Gardens, Cadboro Bay Road.

The committee in charge announces that many more former residents yesterday signified their intentions of being present at the gathering. Many of these were in Lethbridge before 1885 and are entitled to special badges which will be presented this afternoon.

Although there will be a programme, it is the intention to keep it short so those attending will be given ample time to renew old acquaintances.

The Uplands street car and bus will carry passengers fairly close to the gardens. Those reaching the terminals before 3:15 o'clock will be driven by motor to the gathering. Anyone desiring further information is asked to telephone Empire 5827.

PIANIST GIVEN WELCOME HERE

Ogretta McNeill, Back From Toronto, Appears in Ambitious Programme

Always a great favorite with Victoria audiences, Ogretta McNeill, the handi-cap of Midsummer notwith-standing, played to a flatteringly-large audience at the Empress Hotel last night on the occasion of the only pianoforte recital she will give here before returning to Toronto to continue her studies.

A conscientious sense of what ad-vance you have expected to hear from one who has been studying intensively for two years with a famous master must have prompted Miss McNeill to build a programme of such ambitious character. Few ses-sion of one such dimension as this, which included two Bach Preludes, a Mozart Fantasia, a Beethoven Sonata, three difficult Chopin Etudes, and a Mazurka, two Schumann numbers, and four smaller com-positions by near-moderns, Debussy and Ravel. Only a musician thor-oughly rehearsed and in excellent form technically could carry through such a programme without exhaus-tion, and it is testimony to the pianist's fitness that she was willing to supplement all this by additional encores at the last.

DEVELOPED QUALITIES
Whether you have lost any of its individual characteristics, Miss McNeill's playing has matured consid-erably under the intensive tuition of the past two years. Her tone, always firm, has gained in resonance and quality. The technique has greater facility, is more flexible, finished, and unconscious; the intellectual approach is still all-apparent, and everything rehearsed to a nicety.

In the intellectual field she is still at her best. The Beethoven Sonata in D Minor, for instance, ranked among the best things of the evening, revealing a certain masculine quality of thought, meditativeness, repose, due balance, and rising at times to real grandeur of expression. The allegro and adagio movements were particularly impressive both interpretatively and in point of execution, and suggested potentialities of the calibre of the other hand, one felt elsewhere a certain lack of imagination, subtlety, illu-siveness, qualities essential for the contrast needed in a well-balanced programme.

Her two Bach Preludes and Fugues one in C Sharp Minor, the other in C Sharp Major, were authoritatively played as opening numbers. The Mozart Fantasia in C Minor was a good choice for the closing number in the same group. The Beethoven quart rightfully filled a period by itself. There followed the Chopin group, embracing the special favorite Etude in F Op. 10, No. 8, an ardent and dramatic com-position working up to a brilliant climax. In the same group were the Etude in A Flat, Op. 25, No. 1, Etude in E, Op. 10, No. 3, which had distinction of mood, and the Mazurka in F Sharp Minor, Op. 59, No. 3. The first of the Schumann numbers, "Traumes Wirren," was one of the most completely satisfying on the programme, the mood and rhythm being more natural and spontaneous. "In der Nacht," by the same composer, was embraced in the same group.

For her concluding fourth group the pianist played the grotesque "La Puerta del Vino" prelude by Debussy, a novelty demanding pointillist-like execution in its blunt staccato chords; "Bruyeres," by the same composer, and the very well-rehearsed Ravel-Sometime, in three movements.

Numerous beautiful-baskets of flowers and bouquets testified to the pianist's great popularity here.

MISS DICKINSON IS NEW TEACHER

Nanaimo Lady Appointed to Fill Vacancy at Duncan—Has Had Much Experience

DUNCAN, July 23.—Miss Melvyn Dickinson, of Nanaimo, has been appointed to the teaching staff of the Duncan Consolidated School, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss M. Naylor.

The appointment was made by a special committee consisting of Trustees Mrs. Leeming and S. Alton, who were authorized by the trustee board to fill vacancies.

Miss Dickinson has had eight years' teaching experience and was up to 1924, principal of Nanaimo Bay School, a position she resigned to continue her studies at the University of British Columbia. She holds a first-class certificate and excellent inspectors' reports. She is an accomplished musician, and trained the school choir which won the shield three years in succession at the Nanaimo Musical Festival. She has also been prominent in Girl Guide work, being the leader of the Nanaimo group for five years.

the portfolios of Public Health and Education; Attorney-General H. F. McPherson, Hon. G. Shelton Sharpe, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Thomas MacNutt, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. H. D. McLean, Hon. A. F. Arsenault and Hon. M. W. Wood, ministers without portfolios.

LOSERS FIVE VOTES
Best showing made by any Con-servative candidate was that of Hon. Mr. McLean, prominent merchant of Souris, who had been victorious in every Provincial election in the First District of Kings County since 1917, when he replaced his father, Hon. John McLean, who was sum-moned to the Senate. Mr. McLean was defeated by five votes.

The smashing Liberal victory was revenge for a Conservative landslide back in 1911, when the present Chief Justice of the Province, Hon. J. A. Matheson, leading the Conservative forces, won twenty-eight of the thirty seats. That is the free put up by each candidate, whether candidate for either assemblyman or councillor, before the battle of ballots.

NO PRECEDENT TO FOLLOW
There appeared to be no prece-dent for such a situation in Canada. Premier-elect Lea frankly said he was puzzled about how he would carry on British parliamentary procedure in the next Legislature, except to designate one of his members as a makeshift Opposition voice.

Although all Conservatives were defeated, none lost his deposit. It is a rare thing for candidates in Prince Edward Island to lose their deposits, and it would mean a loss of only $10. That is the fee put up by each candidate, whether candidate for either assemblyman or councillor, before the battle of ballots.

AIRPORT NEED IS EXPLAINED

Robert Rideout Says United Air Lines Would Set Up Service to City

"The United Air Lines could use, and would put in a regular air service to this island, if an adequate airport were established here," Robert Rideout, former Victoria pilot, said yesterday in addressing a luncheon meeting of the Victoria Aero League shortly after the Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel.

A modern airfield today is a tremendous asset to a city, he declared. The speaker, who was one of the organizers of the Victoria Aero League, said he did not know what was wrong with Victoria that it was so far behind in aviation.

For the last seven years, Mr. Rideout had been associated with the American Airways in the Orient and Siberia, and it was of his experience in those countries and in the United States, that he spoke.

DISLIKES VLADIVOSTOK

Sixteen years of commercial flying have brought many unusual and interesting experiences to Mr. Rideout, but the most unpleasant was his six-weeks' visit to Vladivostok in Siberia. He hopes never to go there again.

Vladivostok, as the speaker said, was cold and miserable, suffering from sub-zero weather. Fuel was being rationed out and food was scanty, everyone taking what they could get. No comforts were available anywhere.

In Mr. Rideout's opinion 75 per cent of Vladivostok's population would be glad to return to Czarist rule.

JAPANESE ACTIVE

Mr. Rideout flew over Manchukuo, and in the three centres he landed, was subjected to the closest investigation by the Japanese, who, he said, were ruling the country with an iron hand. On his way to China, the pilot visited several of the large cities in Japan and found shipyards and munition plants working at top speed.

"In passing, he said, the Japanese made poor pilots as they were purely mechanical.

Several years ago Mr. Rideout visited the air base at Honolulu and there were, just a few planes, but on his last visit he found thirty-six squadrons there. He said he did not know whether their presence carried any special significance, but admitted the many planes presented a formidable air army.

In 1927, the speaker went to work for Captain G. A. Hancock, who is known in the United States for doing much to assist civil aviation. For three and a half years, Captain Hancock operated a college of aeronautics, giving great assistance to ambitious young men in California and neighboring states. Mr. Rideout was in charge of flying at the school.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Scraper the Kingbird
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

As Peter Rabbit looked up at Scraper the Kingbird he saw that he had just the tiniest of hooks on the end of his bill. Scraper's slightly raised cap seemed all black, but if Peter could have seen where he could have looked down on it he would have found in it a patch of orange-red. Suddenly Scraper darted out into the air and his bill snapped quite as Chebe's did when he caught a fly. But it wasn't a fly that Scraper caught; it was a bee. Peter saw it very clearly just as Scraper snapped it. He had often heard Scraper called the Bee Martin, and now he understood why.

"Do you live on bees altogether?" asked Peter.

"Bless your heart, Peter, no," replied Scraper with a chuckle. "There wouldn't be any honey if I did. I like bees. I like them first rate. But they form only a small part of my food. Those I do catch are mostly drones, and you know the drones are quite useless. They do no work at all. I eat all kinds of insects that fly, and some that don't. I am one of Farmer Brown's best friends, if he did but know it. You may talk all you please about the wonderful eyesight of the Hawk family, but if any one of them has better eyesight than I have I'd like to know who it is. There's a fly way over beyond that old apple tree; watch me catch it."

Peter knew better than to waste any effort trying to see that fly. He knew he couldn't have seen it had it been only one-fourth that distance away. But if he couldn't see the fly he could hear the sharp click of Scraper's bill, and he knew by the way Scraper kept opening and shutting his mouth after his return that he had caught that fly and it had tasted good. "Are you going to build in the Old Orchard this year?" asked Peter.

"Of course I am," declared Scraper. "I wouldn't think of building anywhere else. I've already picked out the very place for my nest."

"If you please," said Peter, "what do you make your nest of?"

"Oh, all sorts of things—weed stalks, grasses and moss," replied Scraper. "Mrs. Kingbird is most particular about it. She likes it with the very finest of grasses and mosses, and with the cottony stuff that grows on some plants. I—"

Just then Scraper spied Blacky the Crow, and with a shrill cry dashed out to meet him. Blacky saw him coming and was wise enough to suddenly appear to have no interest whatever in the Old Orchard, turning away toward the Green Meadows instead.

GOLD COVERAGE LAW SUSPENDED

Italy Appears Confronted With Urgent Necessity to Purchase Supplies for War

ROME, July 23 (AP).—Italy, increasingly concerned with the mobilization of an expeditionary force in East Africa, yesterday decreed the temporary suspension of its 40 per cent gold coverage law.

Nullifying a paragraph in the stabilization law of 1927 fixing the legal gold coverage, the Government's action was regarded in informed circles here as meaning Premier Mussolini was confronted with the urgent necessity of purchasing large supplies of raw materials abroad to furnish his army war materials in East Africa.

VICTORIA CLUBMEN APPOINT DELEGATES

S. J. D. Clark and Lieutenant-Colonel Brooke Stephenson were appointed delegates to the Kiwanis district convention to be held in Vancouver from August 18 to 21, inclusive, at yesterday's luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club.

An appeal for many of the local members to attend the convention was made by E. F. L. Sturdee, president of the Vancouver club, who declared that the gathering would be a miniature international convention and would be one of the largest sessions of its kind ever held in the Pacific Northwest. The speaker urged the members to register immediately.

"How's business?" "Terrible; even the people who never pay have stopped buying."

Tangled Love

by Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER XXVII

"I don't like this," Stephen said to Scott as the small boat awayed. "I've been on the island a long time, but I've never seen anything like this."

Scott, raincoated, his felt hat over his eyes, nodded.

"Scared, Noel?"

"Her eyes, under the sturdy hat, were liquid and dark. Her coat was buttoned to her chin.

"No," she said, "but I was thinking of the island. It looks so defenseless and there are so many houses near the water."

"Look at them," said Stephen, pausing on his oars. "They'll be dashed to pieces or they'll break loose."

When the sailors had helped them aboard the Beatrice, Captain Benton had changed his mind.

"I was going to get in touch with you," he said, soberly looking at Stephen. "We don't want to take chances. I'll take the boat around."

They stayed only a few minutes, got back into the little rowboat again, and Scott rowed to land. On the way home they stopped at several friends, warned them, and received only hearty wisecracks for their trouble.

Back at the house, Elinor and Beatrice paced from one window to the other.

"I'm so glad you're back," said Beatrice.

"My wedding on Thursday," said Elinor. "Isn't this terrible, waiting for something to happen and not knowing how bad it is going to be?"

Stephen called all the servants together, warned them to stay in that night, and bade the chauffeur put every car in the garage.

"If the roofs stay on," he said, "we're safe. Did you notice Beaton Scott? He's an old seafaring man, and he knows when a storm is going to be mean."

Deems laughed.

"If the house is flooded, I shall be a worse case than you," said Noel. "Then we could go up to the attic."

Elinor pouted. "How can you make jokes about it? My wedding dress is up there. Nobody is going up."

"That old weather prophet deserves a silver medal," said Beatrice, referring to the old carpenter helping in the remodeling of the Stuart house. "His bones don't lie."

Deems warned his hands over the fire.

"We are probably the only islanders who suspect what is going to happen. The rest of them are unsuspectingly playing contract; their boats are on the river, their cars in the driveways."

At almost precisely midnight the storm broke with all the fury of an enraged thing long pent up. A terrific gale raged over everything in its wake. Rain beat mercilessly down, swirling the river to overflowing.

At one o'clock every house on the island was plunged into darkness. Beatrice lit the tall candles, and the pale light looked down on the faces of six frightened people.

"I wonder if the servants are all right," said Stephen.

"They are as well off as we are," said Deems.

Elinor said, "Listen... do you hear the river? What if it should overflow? Suppose the island sank? I've heard of those things."

Beatrice comforted, "Don't be worried, child."

But Beatrice herself was worried. All were worried. A shutter upstairs got loose and Stephen took one of the candles and went up. He came down after a few minutes and said, "The shutter broke away. It's all in pieces."

Noel and Scott were standing by the window. There wasn't a light on the island anywhere. Everything was silent, so terribly silent, except for the wind and rain and water.

Deems went to the telephone, held it to his ear a moment, and said, "The line's dead. No lights, no telephone," and smiled despite the wretched cold that hurt his chest. "We're stranded, I'm afraid."

Elinor began to cry.

"Oh, this is terrible!"

Stephen said soberly, "Those boats in the river—there won't be one left. I never heard wind like this."

Scott lit his pipe. "I wonder if anybody was caught. An automobile couldn't stand up against it."

Noel drew her level brows together. "I don't think the little bridge can stand it either."

Elinor opened her eyes.

"We'll be cut off from the mainland if the bridge collapses."

Darkness obscured everything outside and the tall candles flickering in the drawing-room shed a ghostly light. Noel pressed her face against the cold pane, but the washing rain dimmed the view. She could only guess the havoc that was taking place on the beautiful island.

Suddenly a piercing, shrieking cry brought them to their feet. They looked from one to the other. Scott stepped forward, but Beatrice's arm caught him.

"Don't go out! You can't, Scott! I don't think anyone is strong enough to face this gale. You might be swept over the cliff."

"It was a woman's voice," said Scott. "I can't stand here, doing nothing."

"Don't go," said Noel quietly. "Please."

The candles burned low and their hot tallow dripped to their sides. The faces of the six people became less and less distinct.

Noel pulled a chair to the window. Stephen put fresh logs on the glowing fire. Elinor drew up on the divan as if she thought being small and inconspicuous would save her. The faces of Beatrice and Deems wore pale masks.

Noel, feeling safe, glancing now and then at Scott's set profile, watching his hand on his pipe, laying each feature that was his, thought of the other houses on the island. Perhaps in many women were alone. Perhaps their husbands had been trapped in town. Perhaps their babies were ill with fever. Perhaps some thoughtless people had attempted to save their boats—too late. What was that piercing scream that had brought them to their feet, to stare helplessly?

Suppose Scott were not here. Suppose he were in town or at the club. She could not have been so calm about it then. But he was here and she could put forth her hand and touch him if she but dared.

Her own brood that she loved was here in this room. The servants were safe. But it was for the other people on the island she was thinking now, and, like Scott, felt trapped and helpless.

The terrific gale did not cease. A horrible sound from outside penetrated the house; a tearing, cracking, splintering noise brought them to their feet again.

"A tree up by the roots," said Stephen.

"We can't sit here all night," said Beatrice. "Deems, my dear, you should be in bed with that cold."

"We couldn't sleep," said Stephen. "It would be impossible. No, no, I couldn't think of going to bed."

"Nor I," said Scott.

"If I could sleep," said Elinor, "maybe I'd forget about it. I couldn't know it was going on. It's horrible."

"Well, then," Beatrice suggested, "suppose we women go upstairs and try to get a little sleep. There's nothing we can do. You come, too, Deems. If anything happens, Scott and Stephen will be awake."

Beatrice took one of the candles and preceded them upstairs. Elinor crept. Noel walked, looking worried. She did not want to go to bed. She wanted to be downstairs with Scott and Stephen. But she could not protest.

Her room was very dark. She found a match and lit a candle above the fireplace. In a few minutes the big house was silent—Deeds not to be undressed, she merely took off her sturdy shoes and lay on the chase-lounge with a light blanket over her and listened. And she closed her eyes tightly at the wind that seemed fierce enough to tear the house from its foundation. Exhausted she fell asleep, awoke again. When she opened her eyes, it was day. But the wind had not ceased, nor the rain.

At the window she stepped back, stunned by the desolation that faced her. Stephen came into the room.

"Do you see?" he cried. "All night long and I waited to see. It's horrible."

Hundreds of trees were uprooted. Roofs were partly torn away and sun porches blown in. The pavilion had been carried out to the river. Only the foundation remained.

"We don't see half of it," Stephen said. "It's raining so hard we can't see even with glasses. But we can see enough. I wonder if the bridge is still there."

"I wonder if anybody has been killed," said Noel. "Are the others all right?"

"Yes, Sam said the servants sat up all night. Carrier comforted the upstairs maid, who cried all the time. Breakfast is ready. It may be storming, but my appetite hasn't deserted me."

Noel washed, brushed her hair, and went downstairs. In the dining-room the others sat around the table. Sam, the English butler, for the first time in his life, looked untidy. Deems looked positively ill. Scott looked weary from loss of sleep.

"We're still here—whole," said Scott. "At times I thought it was going to let up. It hasn't—one bit. It just doesn't seem so gruesome in the daytime."

"We can't see yet what has happened," said Deems.

"The pavilion is gone."

"Do you suppose anyone is going to attempt to get to town this morning?"

"It's eight o'clock," said Noel. "What a pretty mess for my wedding tomorrow," cried Elinor.

"They went in the drawing-room and Bame made a warm fire."

"Are we just going to sit around all day?" Elinor asked.

M'KINLEY IN FROM ORIENT

Liner Docked Early Yesterday Morning—No Freight Landed Here

Docking at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, the American Mail Line S.S. President McKinley, Captain David C. Austin, U.S.N.R., commander, brought in a fair list of passengers from the Orient. The ship, which was chartered by the U.S. Navy, and which was en route to Seattle, was carrying 400 tons of cargo destined for Victoria, which was carried on to Seattle when the McKinley continued to that port at 7:30 o'clock.

When the liner approached the dock yesterday morning, the men who refuse to work ships calling at Victoria because of "union principles" got word to the men aboard concerning the situation on the pier, while another was busy flag-signalling from the shore to the ship, the result being that there was no steam available for discharging the freight for this port.

PROCEEDED TO SEATTLE
Among the passengers going through to Seattle were Professor Kojima Sugimori, of Waseda University, leader of a Japanese Student Goodwill Group of forty-seven Japanese students from various universities in Japan, visiting the United States; Lieut. Burton Davis, U.S.N., and Mrs. Davis, who was the former Miss Donna Lane, winner of the "Miss Seattle" beauty contest of 1929; P. C. Frank, Jr., executive of the Washington Iron Works, Seattle, returning from a business visit to Japan; and Capt. J. Brown, U.S.N., retired, who left the liner here.

Others on the liner were Mrs. J. B. Yaukey and family, arriving from China on a visit to the United States; Mrs. Yaukey is a sister of Pearl Buck, well-known author; Miss Margaret Moninger, bound for her home at Marshalltown, Iowa.

WHALE OIL IN DEMAND

Germany Buys Large Quantities—Now Organizing Company for Industry

The rapid expansion of the German edible consumption of whale oil within the last decade has given stimulus to the organization of a German whaling industry to operate in the Antarctic regions.

The new company, with its headquarters at Westermünde, proposes to build floating factories of from 18,000 to 20,000 tons, at a cost of $6,000,000 marks each. These will not only produce fine whale oil, but also engage in the entire by-products industry—recovering fish bone, oil and fertilizer. The annual production capacity is forecast at 30,000 tons of whale oil. It is stated.

The extent of the German requirements for whale oil is indicated by the recent conclusion of a

Will Take Excursion to Nanaimo Saturday

A splendid opportunity for a long Summer day's outing will be given Victorians on Saturday, July 27, when the S.S. Princess Victoria will make a special cruise through Gulf Island waters to Newcastle Island, the popular C.P.R. resort near Nanaimo. The Princess Victoria will leave the Belleville Street docks of Canadian Pacific Steamships at 8:30 a.m., and will leave the island on the return trip at 6 p.m. This will give excursionists four hours ashore. There will be an orchestra aboard the ship for dancing on the cruise homeward.

barter deal with Norway for 64,000 tons of whale oil to be shipped to Germany in exchange for manufactured goods. During the first four months of 1935, German imports attained an unprecedented figure of 105,000 tons and it is stated that further agreements have been concluded with Norway involving a total importation of 150,000 tons. During the best previous year, 1932, only 234,378 tons were imported for the entire year.

IMPORTANT REASON
The most important reason for this spectacular rise in whale oil consumption in Germany is the great development of the German margarine industry, of which the last reported production of 480,000 tons in 1932 was the highest of any country in the world. Since 1929 the German margarine industry has been steadily expanding and to supply the necessary ingredients Germany imports substantial quantities of prawns, soy beans, palm kernels and copra in addition to whale oil.

While oil is now not only the cheapest raw material for margarine production in Germany, but one offering the best opportunities for compensation trade. In addition to being a source of cheap edible fat, whale oil is practically unperishable and, therefore, an ideal product for strategic stock laying. Since January 1935, Norway has accounted for practically the entire German importation of this commodity.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

MORE STREET NOISES BEING PREVENTED
Everybody has been surprised that the police of London were able to prevent the sounding of automobile horns or sirens between the hours of 11 o'clock at night and 7 o'clock in the morning. Their surprise has been equalled only by their relief from these disturbing noises.

Paris, with its tremendous number of automobiles, has likewise been able to curb this noise which prevented peaceful or continuous sleep in many households. And now another daily disturbance, the noise of which is much greater than the horns or sirens of automobiles, is about to be controlled in Paris. This is the noise made by the exhausts on motorcycles. Why this terrific noise has been tolerated so long is beyond our knowledge, as the jarring effect upon the eardrums, the brain, and the whole nervous system of the body is greater than any other single noise of the street.

Thus the Paris correspondent of The Journal of the American Medical Association states: "The authorities of Paris have finally decided to control the noise made by the exhausts of motorcycles. Anyone who has attempted to sleep while motorcycles were allowed to make night noises while proceeding at full speed with open exhausts on residence streets will welcome this attempt to control a noise nuisance far worse than that of the automobile engine, already suppressed in Paris at 11 p.m."

The whole world is tired and nervous. What is needed by all of us is relaxation. In many places plenty of time for relaxation, but the cares of life prevent relaxation of mind and hence relaxation of body. Therefore anything that tends to relax the mind and the muscles of the body is bound to further tire us, as tension brings on tiredness.

Just notice the condition of your body when a loud noise is heard. You will find that the jarring noise causes every muscle to become tense. This tension uses up oxygen and creates wastes just the same as if you were actually using the muscles in performing some hard work.

It is gratifying to know then that one by one these street noises, that tense and so tire us, are being prevented.

The habit of kissing is unknown to the Polynesians, who greet by pressing noses.

MAINLAND AND RETURN OUTING
Coach Lines and Steveston Ferry Featuring One-Day Excursion Saturday

A one-day excursion to Vancouver via the Steveston ferry and a Vancouver Interurban train is being featured by the Vancouver Island Coach Lines next Saturday.

The excursion coach leaves the Broughton Street depot at a quarter to eight in the morning, and the passengers arrive in Vancouver at one o'clock in the afternoon. After a five-hour stay in the Terminal City, the Interurban is boarded at the Davis Street terminal at six in the evening for the return journey. Leaving Steveston at a quarter past seven, a pleasant evening cruise is enjoyed through the Gulf Islands to Sidney, where the bus is boarded for Victoria, arriving back at the depot at eleven at night.

This excursion, which is the first of its kind run at a special low fare, offers an opportunity to Victorians and Island residents to spend the day in the Mainland city, without having to spend the night there.

If the patronage of this first excursion to Vancouver justifies its continuance, it will be effective every Saturday for the remainder of the Summer season.

EASTERN AMERICANS INTERESTED IN CITY
Owing to the energetic action of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, the city is obtaining valuable contacts along the Atlantic seaboard. The local bureau has written to every person replying to the Dominion Government coupons advertising for visitors. The result has been a large number of letters from Americans asking for further information about Victoria.

A number of these correspondents have already stated they are coming here this Summer or arranging to visit Vancouver Island in 1936.

TRAIL ROUTE SPECTACULAR
Rocky Mountain Riders Will Start From Banff on Friday Morning

BANFF, July 23.—Just back from a camp-striking tour of the official trail route for the trail riders of the Canadian Rockies, George Vaux, president of the association, reports a seventy-mile trail for this year of great spectacular interest. The forty or more riders who will form the cavalcade starting from Banff Springs Hotel, Friday morning, July 26, have in prospect a ride through some of the most magnificent mountain scenery of the eastern slope of the Great Divide.

Mr. Vaux has spent the last six days along the trail with guides and pack ponies and has superintended the selection of camp sites along the route. Teepees are already pitched at Windy Camp, the riders' first stop along the Cascade River. Poles are cut and laid at Red Deer and Baker Lake camps for the succeeding two nights.

The president reports sections of the trail still in snow and tracks of wild game in many localities. Mountain sheep broke tradition for shyness and noded in the camp garbage for food, a habit formed, it is supposed, from the thoughtfulness of the game wardens in the district.

QUITE TAME
There were plumpian hens and chickens, the tracks of brown bears, grizzlies, elk, moose and deer. A brown bear, a moose and a grizzly and fifteen packers and guides will accompany the trail riders.

Wild flowers in a carpet of bright colors filled the meadows in the Red Deer Valley, under Mount Douglas and Mount McBride. Baker Lake, said Mr. Vaux, at an elevation of 8,000 feet, swarms with fish, and no more sporting course has ever been laid for the annual expedition of the organization now beginning its fourteenth year.

STIRRING DRAMA AT THE CAPITOL

Katharine Hepburn and Charles Boyer Co-Starring in "Break of Hearts"

Transcending all her former triumphs, Katharine Hepburn, flashing genius of the films, comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre today in "Break of Hearts," one of the most powerful and beautiful stories that has been screened in many years. Her co-star is the magnetic Charles Boyer, idol of the French stage and screen.

Boyer proves himself a romantic actor who bids fair to become a toast of the film fans. He has charm, good looks, ability and a compelling masculinity that is irresistible.

The film tells the story of a dashing, dashing, dashing man, the toast of New York, who falls in love with and marries a struggling young woman, Constance Dane. After an ecstatic European honeymoon, Franz finds himself caught up in the whirl of his old life and surrounded by the scores of women who always pursued him. He becomes entangled in a romantic association with Didi Lennox-Smith, a young divorcee. Learning of the affair, Constance tells him that he belongs to the world, not to one woman, and reproaches him with the fact that he never apparently Van Dyke arrived at his latest and greatest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer assignment—directing the all-star cast in "Life Begins at 40," the new picture which is now at the Playhouse Theatre. Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery head the cast, which includes Billie Burke, Charles Butterworth, Frances Drake and Rosalind Russell.

CONTEST NOW NEARS CLOSE

Victoria Horticultural Society Summer Show to Be Held This Week

Judging of the gardens entered in the Home Gardens competition now being conducted by the Victoria Horticultural Society, is rapidly nearing completion, and judges were making an effort last night to complete their survey. The judges for the contest were E. W. White, of the Department of Agriculture, and George Robinson, Elk Lake.

The placing of the best garden in the recent survey of "Gardens That Beautify the Streets," it is hoped, may be known at the close of the Summer show of the society, which will be held next Friday and Saturday at the Willows.

On the back of the admission ticket is a list of the forty gardens which have been named by the society for final placing. This will be done by popular vote. It is hoped by society officials that all the gardens will be inspected by interested parties before the end of the week.

CHICAGO, July 23 (P.)—The Japanese professional golf team ran its touring record in America to twenty-five victories as against twelve defeats and four ties, by sweeping all three matches against Chicago's leading amateurs at Skokie County Club today. On the basis of the scoring, three points best ball Nassau system, the invaders won by a score of 7 to 2.

NEW YORK, July 24—Likely no one in the modern scene has made a reputation seem so foolhardy as the tall, graying John Erskine. The Pugh of high-brows, his professional manner is for the lecture-room only. But when he unbends outside, a dignity shines through. Some may call him John, but no one calls him Jack. A gentleman of extraordinary versatility, he is a composer of distinction, a pianist of concert calibre, an author of best sellers such as "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," and an after-dinner wit. He can write a jolly piece for a sophisticated weekly, as well as a treatise for The London Mercury.

Dr. Erskine, as a first nighter, displays a catholicity. He's always at the Shakespearean and Ibsen revivals, but is not averse to an occasional Scandals or Follies or a peek-in at Minsky's. Any hostess who can capture him is certain to have her party labelled a success.

A frequent Atlantic crosser, he is just as popular in London, Paris and Berlin. Princess Kropotkin recently reported Erskine's newest fad. He dives into a statue books for goofy laws. In Colorado a law against fishing horseback. In Indiana against leading maids astray teaching them to roller skate.

Yankees Break Even With Tigers; Giants Divide With Cards

Detroit Comes Back to Take Second Fixture From New York in American League—62,516 Fans Witness Games—Paul Dean Defeats New York Giants in Opener—Cubs Win Pair

AMERICAN LEAGUE
NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—The Yankees and Tigers played each other all over the Yankee Stadium today in a double-header, opening their momentous four-game series for the American League lead, and when the batting was all over nothing had been gained and nothing lost but prestige.

The Yankees won the first match, 7-5, and the Tigers the second, 3-1, before a crowd of 62,516. The Yankees were in first place by 12 per cent points, half a game, when the struggling started, and they were in the same relative positions when the sun went down on a steaming hot day. A sensational catch by the Canadian, George Selkirk, off Jo-Jo White's apparent home run for the third out in the ninth saved the first game for the Yankees. White was already on his way to second when Selkirk leaped up and snared the ball just as it was going over the screen in front of the right-field bleachers.

LOU GERIG

Home runs played an important part in the scoring as Johnny Allen and schoolboy Rowe failed to go the distance. Mickey Cochrane and Hank Greenberg hit homers for the Tigers in the first and Charley Gehring added another in the eighth, each with the bases empty. Lou Gehrig cracked out one for the Yanks in the first, scoring two runs. Rowe was taken out in the seventh when he showed signs of weakening, being replaced by Elton Hossett, while Allen was lifted for a pinch hitter in the last half of the same frame, Jimmy Deshong finishing the game.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—Rain forced a halt in the Washington and Cleveland baseball game in the fourth inning today, with the Indians leading 2-1. The game was called and a double-header will be played tomorrow. Hayes started for Washington, while Lee was the Cleveland pitcher.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
ST. LOUIS, July 23 (AP)—The New York Giants held to their half-game lead in the National League today but it took four errors, three of them by Pepper Martin, to give them the second game of today's double-header after the St. Louis Cardinals had forced the lead by winning the opening contest behind the great pitching of Paul Dean. The even split was witnessed by a crowd of 31,000.

Brother Paul, hurling four-hit ball and fanning twelve, and Joe Medwick with two home runs, carried the Cardinals to a 6-1 victory in the first game and stretched the Giants' losing streak to six games. The Giants, their regular hurlers already overworked, sent Al Smith to the mound in the nightcap and the young southpaw came through with a fine performance, while the league leaders capitalized on the four Cardinal errors, getting seven unearned runs to win, 8-2. The defeat was the Cards' second in their last twenty games.

Paulino won only two of the twelve rounds, Schmeling taking nine with one even. He will probably fight Joe Louis, negro whirlwind, or Max Baer, in New York this fall.

On Sunday morning hundreds of fishermen will journey to Brentwood Bay for the staging of the fourth of the series of six competitions by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association. The event will start at daylight and will continue on until 5:45 o'clock. All fish must be weighed by 7 o'clock, at which time the presentation of prizes will be made.

The association is sponsoring Sunday's competition, Horace Beer will act as sponsor for the band of the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion. George "Joker" Paterson has been placed his launch at the disposal of the bandmen, and they will travel up and down Saanich Arm, rendering appropriate selections for the benefit of the anglers. The band will also play between 6 and 7 o'clock at the weighing-in station at Brentwood.

Many competitors are expected to try for the handsome prizes which will be offered for competition. The International competition staged at Brentwood a fortnight ago was won by George "Red" Laird, who landed a twenty-one-and-a-half-pound spring on Sunday, and a half-pounder on Monday.

The Puddle Dog Cup, which is awarded to the member landing the greatest number of button fish during the season, Laird is leading in the trophy race, but is closely followed by Frank E. Smith, present holder.

ST. PAUL, July 23 (AP)—St. Paul's fighting Irish, who cheered the exploits of the O'Dowds, the Gibbons and the Malones a decade ago, returned tonight to roar approval of their counterparts in young Jack Gibbons as he boxed and punched his way to a flashy ten-round decision over Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg.

Victoria Defeats Ridley College XI In Close Match

Local Cricketers Score Eleven-Run Victory Over Touring Side at Macdonald Park—Reg Wenman in Fine Display at Wicket to Score 60 Runs for Victoria in Final Match

A much-improved Victoria representative team yesterday defeated the visiting Ridley College cricketers by the narrow margin of 11 runs at Macdonald Park.

Despite a steady innings of 30 by Scandrett and some fine hitting by Gibbons for the ninth wicket the visitors just failed to pull the game out of the fire.

Having won the toss, Skipper Hubert Lethaby elected to bat first and sent in Reg Wenman and Noel Smith as Victoria's opening pair. Runs came slowly at first and only 10 were on the board at the end of the first half-hour's play, both batsmen endeavoring to play themselves against some keen bowling.

The wicket was well kept by the Victoria bowlers and the batsmen were not able to get going and the innings closed at 12:55 o'clock for 151 runs. Reg Wenman atoned for his batting slump of Monday with a masterly display of 60, which included four boundaries, Cameron, Bell and Muir bowled very well for the college, with Muir having the best analysis of four wickets for eighteen.

Ridley started their innings after the luncheon interval and opened none too well. They lost Mitchell cheaply, but Cassels and Muir played steadily against some very good bowling by Frank Jordan and Noel Smith. Jordan beat the bat repeatedly but at the end of the first hour's play after lunch 60 runs were on the board for five wickets.

With Scandrett and Bell still going strong, G. C. Grant replaced Jordan and met with success in his first over, shattering Bell's wicket with a fast one. Cameron did not stay long but Purcell gave Scandrett excellent support and the pair had the century hoisted at 4 o'clock. Scandrett excelled in his placing to square leg, and both boys gave a splendid exhibition of fast running between the wickets.

When the 100 was reached, Capt. Lethaby put Wenman on to bowl in place of Smith but the partnership was still intact at the tea interval, the score being then 104 for six wickets.

Purcell and Cameron McLachlan were dismissed in one over by Jordan after the tea interval and the score read 109 for eight wickets.

FINAL EFFORT
At this stage of the game the odds seemed to be decidedly in Victoria's favor as Ridley needed 43 runs to win with only two wickets to fall. However when Gibbons came in, he and Scandrett made a praiseworthy effort to win the game. They both hit with vigor and the score mounted rapidly to 140, when Gibbons lost his wicket to a snorter from Jordan, the total then being 140 for nine wickets.

With the last batsman in, Scandrett gave a hot return to Noel Smith and he brought off a remarkable catch to end the innings at 140, thus giving Victoria the victory by the narrow margin of 11 runs.

JOHN BARLEYCORN
"Inspiring, bold John Barleycorn,
What dangers thou canst make us
scorn!"The expression John Barleycorn, or Sir John Barleycorn, fanciful description of whisky and robust personification of originally malt liquor but now of the generic spirit that cheers, dates back more than three centuries. In all likelihood, Scotland is its birthplace.While this phrase is sometimes credited to Robert Burns, the fact is that it very much preceded his time.
Almost two hundred years before the birth of the famous Scotch bard we find a Pepsodent library listing among its titles "a pleasant ballad on the origin of the expression 'John

If a woman and July 24 is your birthday, you can have a remarkable influence over those with whom you come into close contact. You have a magnetic personality and recognized strength of character. Be careful you use your gifts advantageously. You should have some definite interest in life outside of social activities. Do not be concerned over the dim distant future as any worries you may have concerning it may prove to be only imagination. When in doubt, it might be good judgment for you to seek advice. If an opportunity is presented to you, be careful that it is not lost through procrastination. You are probably artistic and capable of developing some decided talent in a highly profitable manner. Paintings, newspaper work, teaching, singing, music or selling offer opportunities that you cannot afford to ignore. Your matrimonial life should be happy.

The child born on July 24 generally, when it graduates from high school, needs careful guidance, especially in deciding upon the preparatory work for its future career.

If a man and July 24 is your natal day, it will probably be through the skillful use of your hands or mental activity that you will win through to the goal of your hopes. Botany, lecturing, acting, writing, lecturing or politics, may be largely instrumental in your winning public recognition.

MISS MURIEL DAWLEY DELIGHTS KIWANIS WITH FINE SINGING

With songs particularly well suited to her high lyric soprano voice, Miss Muriel Dawley, a direct descendant of Chief Whitefisher of the Chippewa Indian tribe, delighted the Kiwanis Club yesterday at luncheon in the Empress Hotel. She was roundly applauded after each of her numbers.

Miss Dawley, whose Indian name is O-gee-ma-kay, comes from the Minnesota Chippewa Reservation. She is a student at the present time at Washington State College in Pullman, Wash. Miss Dawley was introduced by Heber Naymish, director of the vocal class at the college.

Wearing an authentic tribal dress inherited from her grandmother, Miss Dawley sang first a tribal melody, then Garman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water," "Pale Moon" by Frederick Knight Logan, and lastly "The Indian Love Call." She was accompanied by Miss Barbara Fraser.

The programme was sponsored by the attendance committee, under the chairmanship of Harry Curry.
